CLIMATE NOT BAD IN TEXAS

Nights Always Cool and Usually Pair Blankets Necessary

TYPHOID IS LEAST PROBABLE ILLNESS

Water Supply Good and Air, Although Hot in Sun, Is Rare and Dry and Quick Evaporation of Moisture Prevents Many Discomforts.

The following letter was addressed to the New York Times and published yesterday. It should be read by everyone interested in the climatic conditions of Texas and Mexico where many Vermont boys are to be, probably, for some time. Incidentally it suggests contributions to the fund for goggles, a subscription paper for which is at the Brattleboro Drug Co's store. The letter:

Despite the fact that the Mexican situation has been so long before us, with the attendant possibility of the call for our National Guard, it is surprising how little accurate knowledge there is of the nature of the life along the border.

When one remembers that the border is nearly equal in length to the distance from here to Chicago and return, the possibility of varied conditions is apparent; but on the high table land which is the present arena of activity of which El Paso is the centre, the climate is wonderful. I have lived in it the year around. It is true at this season of the year it is hot; judged by our thermometer readings, it would seem unbearable and unbearable, but the air is so rare and dry that one is not conscious of it—except in the sun—as the moment shade of any kind is reached one is always comfortable. In the years spent there I never heard of a case of heat prostration. The nights are always cool. Darkness falls immediately after the sun goes down, and with it goes the heat. A hot night is unknown, and usually a pair of blankets is necessary. And such sleep! Never in any part of this country have I experienced anything that compares with it or the thoroughly rested and exhilarated feeling one awakens with, not one morning but every morning while from sheer delight he breathes deeply to drink in deep draughts of the pure fresh air. Particularly is this the case the mornings of the rainy season, which is usually from the middle of May to the first of July. The rains generally fall at night, but even to the soldier sleeping in the open the discomforts are transitory, for when the storm has passed there are no disagreeable conditions such as we have here in mire and sand and oppressive humidity.

Nature's greatest provision in this country is evaporation. It is the keynote of bodily comfort. It is this that prevents the discomforts and annoyances of perspiration, for while the skin performs its natural function, evaporation is instant and complete and the body is always dry. Though this minimizes the dangers of colds—which are extremely rare—this dryness sometimes causes the skin of the face to crack. If so, a daily rubbing with vaseline is advised.

It is the same provision of our good old Mother Nature (evaporation) that makes it possible to have not only cool water but perfectly chilled melons and fruits of all kinds. All drinking water is kept in large porous earthen jars called ollas, holding from 10 to 20 gallons. These are filled each day, then for intermediate household use smaller quantities are placed in earthen bottles which correspond to our earthenware. This clay bottle is usually wrapped in a towel which is kept wet, and the water gets perfectly cold. In temperature resembling that of a good spring. The same method is applied to fruits, wrapping in a wet towel. After eating them cooled in this manner one concludes that never before have the perfection and deliciousness of the article of food been appreciated.

Now as to the enormous idea concerning sanitation: The quaint fear of typhoid that is stalking in the home of those behind the curtain of the world is a thing of the past. From my observation typhoid is the least probable illness. First of all there are few, if any, conditions favorable to the breeding of germs. While on the border the Rio Grande will supply the drinking water, which is good. This important river has a sandy bed and is fed by tributaries from a sandy soil, and it is a well-established fact that water running through sand is filtered and purified. Refuse does not go through the process of decay as we are familiar with it up here, nor does it give off any disagreeable odors. The dry, hot air forms a coating and the sun and heated sands bake it; then disintegration takes place.

This action of the rare air is most astonishing to strangers in its effects upon meats, all kinds of which hang out in the open. Evaporation is so rapid that the surface moisture is absorbed as soon as exposed to the air. A coating is thus formed that hermetically seals it, thereby preserving the meat, which suffers no deterioration even when pieces are cut from it, as with each cutting the process is repeated. This is truly a wonderful provision of Nature, the economic value of which can be readily appreciated.

The one unpleasant feature that the soldier in Mexico will encounter is the sandstorms, which fortunately occur only periodically, and I would suggest that each man provide himself with a pair of dust-proof goggles, which are absolutely necessary.

THE LATE GEORGE S. PERRY.

Former Brattleboro Man Was Active in Boys' Y. M. C. A. Work.

An appreciation of the late George S. Perry, formerly of Brattleboro, who died at Fort Slocum, N. Y., Monday evening, June 19, was published in a Danvers, Mass., newspaper the day following the funeral, which was held in Danvers, his home town. Mr. Perry for a time was a member of the real estate firm of Griggs & Perry in this town. Later he was employed several years in the Grange store. He was a member of the Centre Congregational church while here and taught a class of boys in the Sunday school. He assisted in the Y. M. C. A. of New York city, his death followed an illness of two days with peritonitis. The Danvers paper said:

"Mr. Perry was born in Danvers 61 years ago. He was one of seven children, whose parents were Horatio and Mary Putnam Perry. He was married and has two living sons, James O. and Wallace P. Perry; Mrs. Henry Moore, Miss S. Marcella Perry and Mrs. Parker A. Cook, all of whom live in Danvers.

"Mr. Perry was educated in the public schools of Danvers. Since 1898 he had been engaged in Y. M. C. A. work, chiefly in the boys' department. He began this service in Brattleboro, Vt., continued it in Jamestown, N. Y., and ended this devoted and useful labor in Fort Slocum, N. Y.

"In every one of these places Mr. Perry was united in the service with General Secretary Charles F. W. Cunningham, who was with him when the end came on Monday evening last, after an illness of only two days at the hospital in connection with the military station at Fort Slocum, the largest recruiting station of the United States army this side of San Francisco. The Y. M. C. A. equipment at Fort Slocum was provided by the generosity of Mrs. Russell Sage, and here Mr. Perry labored most successfully for nearly a year.

"Mr. Perry was devoted to his high calling—service for boys and young men whose lives he understood and into whose experience he fully entered. Between his service at Brattleboro and that in Jamestown, he put in nearly three years of effort with boys in Danvers and in professions here and elsewhere, remember him gratefully. Last summer and early fall he worked with his old-time enthusiasm and success with the boys of Maple street Bible school, whose devotion to him in a short time became complete, because his wisdom and efficiency in his life with them were unusual. Mr. Perry joined Maple street church in 1870, and while his church affiliation was in due season transferred to the place of his longest labor, Jamestown, the service of Christian unity was most appropriately held in the town where he was born, and where he was most honored and beloved for his many character and devoted Christian labor."

CHURCH OF REDEEMER TO COST $175,000

New Haven Church, of Which Rev. R. M. Houghton Is Pastor, Also to Have Graded Sunday School.

The plans for the new building of the Church of the Redeemer at Whitney avenue and Cold Spring street, New Haven, Conn., of which Rev. Roy M. Houghton, formerly of the Centre church here, is pastor, call for a modern church plant consisting of church and parish house, of red brick colonial meeting house type of architecture. The plan when completed will cost approximately $175,000. Work will begin on the parish house as soon as building conditions will permit. When the parish house is completed all services will be held in it until the church proper is completed. The church is looking forward hopefully and enthusiastically to the building of a beautiful modern church plant and to the building of an efficient, modern, working church organization.

The members of the Church of the Redeemer and the ecclesiastical society have voted to approve the plan for a modern department graded Sunday school as outlined by the pastor, and to instruct the building committee to go forward in securing working drawings and specifications for the building planned to accommodate such a school.

It also has voted to have a committee on religious education and Prof. Luther A. Weigle was elected chairman of that committee. Prof. Weigle has been called to a chair of religious education in Yale university. He is recognized as one of the best authorities in the country in Sunday school work. The church is exceedingly fortunate to secure his services. The duties of his committee will be:

1. To make a religious education survey of the church and parish.
2. To draw up a constructive program of religious education.
3. To administer this program and to secure all the necessary material and young people's societies; to choose the officers and teachers, and courses of study and to formulate rules and regulations for the Sunday school and all other organizations of children and young people.

In every one of these places Mr. Perry was united in the service with General Secretary Charles F. W. Cunningham, who was with him when the end came on Monday evening last, after an illness of only two days at the hospital in connection with the military station at Fort Slocum, the largest recruiting station of the United States army this side of San Francisco. Carries $322,000,000—Senate Debate Lasts a Month.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—The annual postoffice appropriation bill, carrying $322,000,000, was passed yesterday by the senate after a debate began more than a month ago. Differences over the railway mail pay provision and other sections of the measure probably will prevent final agreement in conference before July 1 and force continuance of existing postal appropriations with the coming fiscal year.

Three important changes were made in the bill in the senate. As a substitute for the house's space method for compensating railways for mail transportation, the senate adopted the Cummins amendment directing the interstate commerce commission to fix the method and rates of pay. An amendment was adopted restricting the combination of horse-drawn rural mail routes into motor routes, and provision that contracts for pneumatic tube service in the big cities should be continued another year, stricken out by the house, was restored.

The last but one of the annual supply measures, the military appropriation bill, carrying $12,000,000, was passed yesterday by the house. It was made the vehicle of a brief political debate. Only the general deficiency bill remains to be considered in the house.
